WWP Running Group Takes on Arnold 5K Pump & Run

COLUMBUS, Ohio, March 10, 2016 /PRNewswire-USNewswire/ -- Fourteen members of a Wounded Warrior

Project® (WWP) running group completed their greatest physical accomplishment to date. WWP Alumni and family support members competed in the Arnold 5K Pump & Run on Sunday in Columbus, Ohio.

The Arnold 5K Pump & Run is the largest race of its kind in the United States, requiring participants to bench press a percentage of their body weight with each lift reducing their 5K run time by 30 seconds.

The WWP running group began training for the Arnold 5K Pump & Run months previously by attending weekly group runs and following strict 5K and bench-press-strength training plans.

"This was something I wanted to do for many reasons," said Ronald Middleton, a WWP Alumnus whom has already lost 20 pounds since participating in his first WWP program. "My ultimate goal is overall fitness, but setting short term goals has helped me stay motivated and focused."

The Physical Health and Wellness (PH&W) program is one of 20 free, direct WWP programs and services provided to injured service members, their families, and caregivers. With year-round seasonal fitness, sporting, and exercise activities, PH&W helps the healing process by getting warriors out the door, active, and engaged.

After a previous WWP 5K training event, offered last December through PH&W, attendees—both Alumni and family support members—decided to keep their training group together.

"Everyone from the previous event aspired to achieve their health and wellness goals as a team," said Luke Koval, physical health and wellness specialist for WWP. "Interest spread and the group has grown."

"The most important thing I learned was that I'm not in this alone," said Middleton, highlighting the importance of the peer support role. The peer support role is so crucial in the recovery process that WWP has a program specifically focused in this area called the WWP Peer Support program. One goal of the Peer Support program is for every warrior and family support member to support his or her fellow group members in recovery, thus embodying the WWP logo of one warrior carrying another off the battlefield.

"Other WWP Alumni are right there motivating each other to finish," said Middleton. "I realize it's not a sprint; it's a marathon. No matter what, I have to keep going, not only for myself but for others as well."

In January alone, nearly 800 wounded veterans took part in PH&W events.
